Seven squares in this puzzle can be correctly filled in with two different letters. In each case, enter both letters into the square, arranging them so that they coexist comfortably. Read from top to bottom, those seven squares will then reveal a two-word phrase that literally suggests extra inhabitants, and (loosely) phonetically describes the gimmick of this puzzle.